THINGS HEARD AND OVERHEARD. Facts and Fancies Jotted Down in the Daily Notebook.

"No," said a slightly cynical bachelor who has been doing society considerably lately, "its not because I am tremendously popular that I get invitations and I don't consider it such an honor to be invited to dine somewhere every night in the week. Why in the world do you suppose they invite me?" Well, I'm a good deal like the fellow who is taken on a ship to work for his passage. He pays for his voyage with work. I work my passage at the dinner. Oh, yes, I do. There's no use being vain about these things. You see I'm not married, and there's always some young woman or old woman for that matter, who has to be taken care of. And then I'm a good laugh. I laugh at all the good things that are said and many that are not so good. I get in my own little jokes when the time comes. I am working my passage and my hostess smiling approval on me."

It is the old moments that we do not count as playing any part in our lives that are, after all, the best we have. When a girl buys a stock these days it is a great temptation to buy a girdle and bow for the hair the same color.

"It must be a whole lot of fun to be engaged," said one of the rare maidens yesterday, who does not flaunt a diamond on the third finger of her left hand, "but, and a mischievous twinkle came into her eye, 'I want to say, right here, that its a whole lot more fun not to be.'"

It is said that Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, who introduced the garment that bears her name, was a "very ladylike woman," but she certainly had no sense of the grotesque and no horror of the hideous.

Some of the hats which are illustrated among the winter fashions for women are revivals of those worn by the cavaliers who followed Rupert against Cromwell, and it often happens that garments worn by women were a part of the male costume at an earlier period of masculine development.

One woman suffragist vented her disappointment this morning by saying: "These men would rather yelp and bark than think and vote."

If you own any real lace, now is the time to bring it forward. It is more popular than it has been for years. Next to point duches, it is the most prized.

SAVED BY SIGNAL SERVICE. Greater Sea Losses Prevented by Warnings by the Weather Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The agricultural department has issued a statement showing that during the storm of September 24-25, 1,089 vessels, valued at $17,100,000; and in the storm of October 8-10, 1,216 vessels valued at $18,138,000 remained in port on the Atlantic and gulf coasts, secured from danger throughout the periods for which warnings were issued by the weather bureau.

This makes a total of 2,305 vessels, valued at $35,238,000, a large portion of which probably would have gone out but for the warning. It is fair to assume, that had they done so nearly all of them would have encountered the storms and been more or less damaged if not entirely lost. The records of those who went out in the face of warning show that in every instance they suffered severe injury or were destroyed.

Reports from the region traversed by the storm give the warning credit for saving a number of lives; one station alone, Charleston, reporting over 100 lives probably saved by this means.

A BIG $150,000 NOTE. It Has Gone to Protest and the Banks in a Quandary.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 7.—When the iron firm of Moorehead & McClean failed three years ago, M. K. Moorehead endorsed a note for $150,000, which was discounted by Pittsburgh banks, the mill by this means being enabled to continue operations.

This note has gone to protest, and the creditors refuse to grant an extension of time. George S. Griscom, president of the company, says the business of the past two years is the cause of the trouble. The banks have not decided as yet what course to pursue.

Now that you have won your bet, get a suit made to your order at Althen & McManus, tailors, 610 Kansas avenue, and look pleasant.

Good work done by the Peerless.

SNAP SHOTS AT HOME NEWS.

Poor, poor David. Has Mr. Herald heard from the Second ward?

We do hope we'll hear less of the tin horn now.

There was a sort of a dull thud silence at police headquarters this morning.

People shout when election returns come in who never shout at any other time.

Yesterday was a beautiful election day. The Lord is always good to the Republicans.

The noise you heard last night was merely the campaign rooster clearing his throat.

The sleepy looking people you see in town today were up all night last night watching the returns.

Drunk people were almost as numerous in Topeka last night as they are in the river towns every day.

No reporter in Topeka has had the courage to interview Mrs. Annie Diggs, et al, on the amendment today.

Mrs. W. R. Hazen has presented the firemen of station No. 4 with a large quantity of magazines and periodicals.

The money spent for liquor in Topeka last night would have gone a great ways in the hands of the Associated Charities.

D. Schenck having helped swell the Republican majority in Kansas has gone to New Castle, Col., where he will remain during the winter.

It was a peculiarity of all the fights last night that the contestants explained after it was all over what they would have done "if they could only have got at him."

The etching reproduced on the JOURNAL canvas last night, entitled "I'm The Hottest Thing That Ever Happened," was too deep for those in the crowd who didn't see Corbett's show. It is entirely "recent" slang.

William Higgins and Lew Hanback were among the people who read the STATE JOURNAL election bulletins from the outside. They ought to have come inside. The JOURNAL had a chair for each of them.

The clerks in a well known Topeka grocery store surprised the proprietor by cleaning and scrubbing the store last night after 12 o'clock. When he saw what they had done he immediately threatened to raise their salaries.

On Kansas avenue, near Gordon street in North Topeka, this morning a mound of fresh earth marked with a board attracted much attention. On the board was plainly printed "Here lies Lewelling. He is gone where nobody knows and nobody cares."
